Service Agreement

We require a retainer agreement to be reviewed and signed prior to the commencement of work. The Agreement will outline, among other things, professional fees being charged plus expenses. This is held in the company's trust or business account. The client may be billed at various stages and fees are transferred from the trust or business account to reflect services rendered.

Results

Immigration practitioners charge professional fees for the process, not the result. The process will include an initial consultation, signing of a retainer agreement, document review, application submission, corresponding with the appropriate government department, and follow-up when needed.

Results are never guaranteed by anyone (lawyer, paralegal, or immigration consultant). Advertising 'guaranteed results' or '100% success rate' by an immigration consultant should be reported.

Information included in each application is always reviewed by the client prior to submission. We cannot be held accountable for material information that was not disclosed at the time of submission and the possible consequences of such errors or omissions.
